3	Original music and sound effects, mixed for phones	80	3,600
4	Arabic and English: review of the jam's Arabic edition by a native speaker and an Islamic-finance adviser, the new content in both languages, right-to-left UI for it	90	4,050
5	Mobile release: iOS and Android builds, store listings, accessibility (color-blind safe, one-hand play)	160	7,200
6	Classroom mode: teacher dashboard with no personal data, 10-minute lesson plan, printable debrief	140	6,300
7	Playtests: 3 rounds with learners 16-30, before/after questions on the 4 lessons, fixes	100	4,500
8	QA, performance on low-end phones, launch and 3 months of support	110	4,950
	Subtotal	1,000	45,000
	Contingency (10%)		4,500
	Total		49,500

Milestones

- Month 1: design and balance, Arabic/English text, first playtest on the web build.
- Month 2-3: art and sound, classroom mode.
- Month 4: mobile builds, second playtest.
- Month 5: QA, accessibility, third playtest.
- Month 6: store release and the playtest report (what learners got right before and after playing).

What ships at each funding level

Prizes and final amounts are set by the jam, so the plan is cut from the bottom of its priority list, not spread thin. Learning and reach come first; new content comes last.

Funding	Lines funded	What ships
$5,000	Line 4 ($4,050) + 21 hours of line 7 ($945) = $4,995	The Arabic edition reviewed, one small playtest on the web build
$15,000	Lines 4, 6 and 7 = $14,850	Plus classroom mode and all three playtest rounds, on the web
$30,000	Lines 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 = $27,000 + 10% contingency = $29,700	Plus the iOS and Android release with the current art
$49,500	All lines + 10% contingency	Plus new life events, original art and original music

What stays free

The web version stays free to play, with no ads and no data collection from players.
